

THINK SAFETY:

These are some of the safety rules from AMA, IMAC, and some good old common sense.

- No standing in front or directly to the side of a running nitro or gas plane's propeller. (For electrics the same goes for running or not)
- Start Nitro and Gas planes with the propeller facing away from the shelter or start them in the pits.
- No smoking inside of the pits at all. (Especially with Gas or Nitro present)
- Those with gas powered planes must have a fire ext. in the pits at all times.
- Two people preferred to maiden a new plane, (One to do the flying and the other to trim)
- No one in the air after a plane experiences a sudden acute jump in gravitational forces, gravity check, or a good old plane crash.
- Fly outside patterns at end of runway when someone is on the field to retrieve a dead stick.
- The use of a throttle lock on radios equipped with them should be used.
- Do not taxi past the engine kill box.
- Do not fly over or behind the pits, spectators, vehicles, and/or the shelter. If plane is out of control, ground it by any means possible to avoid damage to property or person.
- Do not fly alone - always have with you another pilot or safety observer in case of accident or injury.
